The local residents play a vital role in the protection of Mangrove and mangrove based Biodiversity. The main reason being their close relationship with the environment. Ecotourism is a source of livelihood for the people living along the coast. These local residents give information about the mangroves to the tourists who visit the place. These tourist hardly know about the mangroves and they get first hand information about them from the local residents. Ecotourism plays an important role in not only enriching the lives of the local people but also plays a very important role in conservation of the Mangrove and surrounding Biodiversity and this Ecotourism activity is one of the vital activities that we have undertaken for the people.
